To whom it may concern.

I am writing to you in order to inform you of my dissatisfaction with the governments settlement in the Microsoft antitrust case.

Little to nothing is being done to Microsoft in this case, and it is a shame. In my office there are a number of people who have installed windows new operating system, and have nothing but problems with it. They have no other option, because Microsoft goes out of their way to make sure that all software that the average home user will only work on their OS.

The simple way to solve this is to open their source code, so that other people could make an operating system, or ther programs that would interface with programs written for windows.

We are a government by the people, for the people, not for the corporations.

Thank you.

Aaron Hobart.
